It is understood that the New York negotiations resulted in a failure to agree and that the suit will be fought out here.

HANDS A BUNCH TO M'CLANAHAN

HE ACCUSES THE CANDIDATE OF TRYING TO BLUFF HIM "INTO OBSCURITY."

"There was no occasion whatever," said Senator Woods "for McClanahan rushing into print in regard to my statements over the situation on the island of Hawaii, as regards the delegate to Congress. His insinuations that I have been guilty of any disloyalty to his candidacy, are without any warrant whatever. In the first place the interview from me published in the Advertiser was incomplete and by reason of its incompleteness gave an impression somewhat different from what my more complete statements would have done, had they been published."

"I stated to the reporter of the Advertiser that we Democrats in Kohala were all right but I did not think that McClanahan would be able to secure up a dozen votes outside of us. There is no treason in that statement. I furthermore stated that we would do everything we could to land him, meaning McClanahan. This statement was not however published in the interview. Certainly there is nothing treasonable or disloyal to such a statement. It is on the contrary an expression of allegiance and good faith toward the party."

"But back of this attack upon me lies a deeper motive than any intention of administering upon me 'instant public condemnation,' to quote Mr. McClanahan's letter. I want to issue warning to Mr. McClanahan and to the people who are back of him that if they think for one second they can bluff me into obscurity, to enable them to further their own ends, they are mistaken. I am fully aware of the purpose of trying to make an issue of this character. It is in the hope that the national committee-men will slip from my hands into the lap of an element of the Democratic party with which I am not identified. The prospects of Democratic presidential success in 1908 are regarded as too bright for a certain local element in the party to refrain from trying to secure control of the party in Hawaii with the ultimate intention of dominating the patronage in event of Democratic success."

"So far as party loyalty is concerned, my record will stand favorable comparison with that of Mr. McClanahan. We on Hawaii have succeeded in establishing an organization that has made the Democratic Party a party of standing and influence. We are not to be placed in the same category as some of the political incompetents who have mismanaged the Democratic party on the island of Oahu. Only those having some ulterior motive, could distort the statements that I made to the reporter of the Advertiser, into any expression of disloyalty to the Democracy. If Mr. McClanahan is so desirous of causing friction that he has to wantonly attack me, either as national committee-man or in my local capacity as a member of the party, I am prepared to meet him on every proper issue that he will make."

ALAMEDA ARRIVES.
